PROJECT ZERO

HOME CONCEPT LOOKBOOK

Three Ways to Build in the Ozarks

Explore three homes and how their layouts fit different routines and lots.

WALKOUT HOME / EXTERIOR CONCEPT ILLUSTRATION

One-Level Ranch / Two-Story Craftsman / Walkout Home

PROJECTZEROBRANSON.COM

HOME CONCEPT

The One-Level Ranch

Keep everyday routines and bedrooms on the same floor.

Exterior concept illustration

MAIN LEVEL

Bedrooms	Kitchen / dining	Drop zone
Bath / laundry	Living / entry	Garage

Concept layout for discussion only. Not for construction.

Picture it in your home

Would you rather be able to drop groceries by the kitchen or keep shoes and jackets out of sight at the entry?

HOME CONCEPT

The Two-Story Craftsman

Gather downstairs. Give the bedrooms a floor of their own.

Exterior concept illustration

MAIN FLOOR

Kitchen / dining	Stairs	Mudroom
Living / entry		Garage

UPPER FLOOR

Primary bedroom	Stairs	Bath
Secondary bedrooms

Concept layout for discussion only. Not for construction.

Picture it in your home

Would you want all bedrooms upstairs, or is there a reason to keep one on the main floor?

HOME CONCEPT

The Walkout Home

Enter on the uphill side and open the lower level to the backyard.

Exterior concept illustration

MAIN LEVEL

Covered deck
Kitchen / living	Stairs
Entry / uphill side

LOWER LEVEL

Backyard patio
Family room	Stairs
Storage / utility

Concept layout for discussion only. Not for construction.

Picture it in your home

How would you use the lower level if it opened straight onto the patio?

YOUR BUILD IDEAS

What would you keep?

Borrow the features that fit the way you live.

Which concept caught your eye?

Circle one: One-Level Ranch / Two-Story Craftsman / Walkout Home. Then write down what drew you to it.

What would you borrow from another concept?

Think about entry storage, bedroom placement, outdoor space, or garage access.

What do you already know about your lot?

Note the area, whether you have land, and any questions about slope, access, or views.

What would you like to ask us?

Bring this page and a few inspiration images to your first conversation.

Talk through your build